PROGRAM

Learning Objectives:

At the conclusion of the activity, the participant should be able to:

- 1) Distinguish the main pathology diseases observed in skin biopsies, in the fields of lymphoma, soft tissue tumors, infectious diseases, cutaneous reactions to systemic therapies, and melanocytic lesions difficult to diagnose.
- 2) Determine the pertinent special techniques to be applied as an aid in the differential diagnosis of skin biopsies.
- 3) Evaluate the results of special techniques applied as an aid in the differential diagnosis of skin biopsies.

Needs Assessment: Cutaneous biopsies reflect a large number of diseases, a number of them being specific to the skin. Therefore, there is a need for courses dedicated specifically to dermatopathology to train residents and to provide continuous medical education for practicing pathologists.

Target Audience: This activity is designed for physicians, educators, fellows and residents, physicians assistants, and any other health care professionals.

Educational Methods: The program format will consist of didactic lectures with Q&A and discussions. Handouts will be provided.

Evaluation: Evaluation by questionnaire will address program content, presentation, and possible bias.

Accreditation: This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the Essential Areas and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) through the joint sponsorship of Texas Medical Association (TMA) and the Houston Society of Clinical Pathologists. The TMA is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

This activity also incorporates the Self-Assessment Modules (SAM) Credits required by the American Board of Pathology's Maintenance of Certification (MOC) Program. Physicians may claim up to 7.0 SAM credits for this activity. Claimed credit should commensurate with the extent of participation in the activity.

Credit Designation: The TMA designates this educational activity for a maximum of 7.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Policy on Disclosure: In order to meet the requirements of the ACCME it is the policy of The TMA that all individuals who are in a position to control the content of a CME activity (activity director, planning committee members, and faculty) disclose relevant financial relationships with commercial interests. All identified conflicts of interest are managed to help ensure that the educational material is scientifically based, accurate, and objectively presented. Faculty are also required to disclose any discussion of off-label or investigational uses of any commercial products or devices not yet approved in the United States. Specific disclosure will be made to the participants prior to the educational activity.
